TUESDAY, SEPT. 18, 1906.

The County Committee appears something like the ship that has "died" before it runs smoothly.

Someone should present the Pacific Mail boat captains with a sprig of Admiral George Peckley's awa-root.

No one has said any particularly nasty things of Curtis Iaukea, except the organ now trying to boost his cause.

They are getting enough diplomats in Havana to make a first-class row, in the midst of which the plucky rebels will be entirely forgotten.

Members of the County Committee should remember that they were put in office to carry the election—not carry each other out on a stretcher.

Didn't J. K. Kalakiela appear before the Republican convention and pledge himself to accept the result of the ballot and support the candidates nominated?

Think of the high moral character of a journal that says it refuses to discuss a public letter because the document was not first offered to the publication. Think of it, and smile.

Trust Promoter McCandless to lose no opportunity to boost the direct steamship line, on the list of necessities since the reefs have taken such a large percentage of the through boats.

Prospect of having Clarence Cooke as Treasurer ought to suggest to many committee men that they can afford to sacrifice many technical points of strategy for a good supply of ammunition.

Just as the people had their mouths shaped to congratulate Captain Saunders, along comes Captain Porter as a proper object of sympathy. May he be as fortunate in his misfortune as the captain's courted into close contact with Oahu.

Governor Carter says what you would expect from an Executive who is doing his best to hold the affairs of the people level and not run contrary to his party. The Republican ticket will indeed have solid support and it will be elected.

This prize-fighting question is a reminder that some years ago there could be no such thing in Hawaii as a missionary hula. Times change and the missionaries who would make headway in fighting real wrongs must recognize conditions if they expect to lead people rather than disgust them.

This talk of who knifed who in the secrecy of the secret convention isn't like discussing the politics of the inhabitants on the planet Mars. There is not a leader who can tell within a large margin of how his men voted. Anyone in doubt has only to contemplate how Lane's own men must have slashed his friend Fernandez. The secret ballot has ever had brought to his rescue.

THEN AND NOW.

Citizens of the County of Oahu have been treated to many amusing exhibits of what political spite will do in warring the utterances of the morning paper. The record is so well known that details of the manifold instances need not be quoted in full.

Two years ago the community was disgusted with the innuendo that was thrown at Curtis Iaukea from the House of Disappointment, when the man's real or imaginary shortcomings were trotted before the public. The nauseating campaign of malice is complete with the latest demonstration of the fact that the organ's blind hatred of Brown leads to its putting Iaukea in the list of civic saints.

Below is found what the Hawaiian Gazette (semi-weekly edition of the Advertiser) published in its issue of Nov. 4, '04, and also the latest comment on Iaukea, appearing in the Advertiser of this morning:

(From Hawaiian Gazette (semi-weekly edition of the Advertiser) of Nov. 4, '04.)

"Iaukea is an unstable, vacillating man who has belonged to all three parties in a year and cannot be depended upon to move in any given political direction if the wind changes. He has confessed to having indelible spots on his record. But his most serious fault as a Delegate in Congress would be his illud, unreasoning hatred of white men and white men's measures."

(From Advertiser of Sept. 18, '06.)
"Mr. Iaukea has the respect of the community, has filled positions of trust in the Government, to the satisfaction of everyone, and has had in the past some very important missions abroad."

THE PRIZE FIGHT LAW

Shall the law against prize-fighting be enforced in the Territory of Hawaii?

Put the question to a vote and the overwhelming answer would be that as long as the state contests are not brutal, and are kept free from the faking that merely filches money from the public, the enforcement should continue to operate as it has in the past.

Yet it must be confessed that the radical opponents of this form of sport appear to have the law on their side.

People who put boxing contests in the category of cardinal sin are almost invariably individuals convinced that the sport is so awfully awful that they could not think of attending an event to see what it is like. They would, however, sit out a football game, in which their nearest and dearest relative was borne off the field more dead than alive, his liver punched full of holes, teeth knocked out, and a leg broken—and call it glorious.

Fistic encounters according to the rules of the ring do not, it must be confessed, attract many college graduates as principals, though the audience never lacks for a large smattering of the representatives of higher education. The influence is not exactly that of the Sunday school; at the same time, the prize-fight of today is a very different affair from the bloody battles and pug followings of twenty years ago.

The Bulletin believes that the prize-fights as conducted in this city present an opportunity for an honest difference of opinion. Our ministerial friends must realize this when they stop to think that the District Attorney of the court over which Judge Dole presides has not seen fit to call for a strict interpretation of the law. Ignorance of the law is not pleaded.

We are inclined to the opinion that President Roosevelt, if the question were passed up to him, would confess to a knowledge of the law and secretly wonder why it should be brought from the shelf in the blue-room.

The railway bridge which connects Venice with the mainland is 12,650 feet long and has 222 arches.

PAR TO MEET

The adjourned annual meeting of the Bar Association is called for Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Republican headquarters.

This is the session at which the report of the committee on Carl Smith's professional conduct will be taken up for action. From all that has been said there will be a marked difference of opinion unless the friends of Smith get out and smooth things over before the meeting and argue their differences in private.

ATTENDING SCHOOL OPENINGS.

Editor Evening Bulletin:—I notice the papers say Superintendent Habbitt was present at the opening of the term at Punahou School. That's all right. What I want to know is whether Mr. Habbitt was present at the opening of the High School or any other public school of our city.

I notice that the Superintendent and the Commissioners have very little time to visit the public schools. I think he ought to give as much attention to the public institutions which the taxpayers support and the fathers and mothers want to see go forward.

Yours for Schools,
CHARLEY CHIP.

DEMOCRATS COURTING AGRICULTURAL LABOR PARTY

It Asks Endorsement Of Joe Fern And Kalakiela

GREAT DOINGS ON FOOT FOR MONDAY'S SESSION

McINERNEY FOR HOUSE IN FIFTH. IAUKEA FOR SHERIFF AND HARVEY OR FERNANDEZ FOR SUPERVISOR.

Now that the excitement of the Republican conventions is over, the Democrats are coming in for their share of political recognition.

Next Monday morning will witness the delegates of the Democratic party convening to name their candidate for the Legislature and the various county offices. They will have their hands full. Their attention will not only be directed to the selection of candidates, but some important propositions will have to be considered.

The Republican Labor party will seek endorsement of the names of Joe Fern for Supervisor, and J. K. Kalakiela for Deputy Sheriff. This Labor party assures the Democrats the support of the rest of their ticket if these men are endorsed. Senator Aoki says that the Labor party is composed of one thousand voters. But a conservative Labor man places the figures at about three hundred.

The Home Rulers are also seeking for help from the Democrats. While the Home Rule leaders are strongly opposed to fusion in any shape, still some Home Rulers favor it, and will probably take the bull by the horns themselves in spite of the leaders. The Home Rule proposition is that the Democrats endorse Senator Kalakiela for Supervisor, and Jesse Makinani for Auditor. In return they are willing to leave some of the places on their ticket vacant for the Democratic nominees.

These propositions are of grave importance to the Democrats, and they will probably be adopted. Everything points that way. If the sentiment of the majority of the Home Rule voters counts for anything, then there will be a Democratic-Home Rule fusion again.

Curtis P. Iaukea will be the candidate for Sheriff from the Democratic party. It was feared that he might not run on account of his recent illness, but yesterday he called Frank Harvey to his house and told him that he is still in the race. His candidacy was first announced at a Kulaoka meeting, which was reported in this paper a short time afterward.

Frank Harvey seems to be the choice of the majority of the party for Supervisor-at-large. Also Fernandez wants this honor, but he may be persuaded to run as Supervisor for the District of Honolulu. Geo. Holt is also talked of for Supervisor. Moore is almost certain of his re-nomination.

If the Democrats reject the proposition of the Labor party, then Billy Jarrett, the popular freight clerk of the Mauna Loa, will be put up against Vida.

For the Legislature Ed McInerney is the choice of the Fifth District. Dan Kamahua, a longshoreman who polled very strong at the last election, and David Kaleoku, who is now engaged by the Democrats to look after their interests with the Board of Registration, are talked of for the House. Many are aspiring for seats in the House, but the two mentioned are the most prominent.

The Home Rulers will have their convention on the same day as the Democrats, and will hold it at their headquarters on Kukui street.

So far even the Democrats themselves seem very uncertain as to whom they will place on their ticket, and it is possible, even probable, that only a partial list of candidates will be nominated, blanks being left for the rest of the offices.

This is especially true in regard to the nomination of Delegate. The Democrats realize that Cupid is sure to have a walk-over, and say that with them it only amounts to a question as to whether they will nominate a straw man, or leave a blank on the ticket.

There are, however, some prospects of a scrap among the Democrats. There is considerable opposition being worked up in the ranks against Moore, who is one of the candidates for Supervisor. The kickers say that Moore did not lop off Sam Johnson's official head when he had a chance, and for this reason they oppose his candidacy, more because they do not wish him to run than because they have some candidate to run against him.

Colonel McCarthy has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for Supervisor on the Democratic ticket. "I have been asked to take the nomination," said the Colonel, when seen about the matter today, "but I have not made up my mind yet. It is possible that I may run."

County Treasurer Trent will be placed on the Democratic ticket again for the same office, and the party feels certain that he will be elected.

"Of course I expect to beat him," said County Sheriff A. M. Brown today when asked his opinion about Iaukea's candidacy. "But I am glad that Iaukea is running. It is more interesting to have a fight than to run all alone."

Withington In Favor Of Pugilism

"No; the Civic Federation is not behind Mr. Dickey's campaign against pugilism," said D. L. Withington this morning, when questioned on this point. "I am not personally behind it, either, though I must confess that I was the indirect cause of it. I was asked about the law on the subject, and gave it. The law referred to by Mr. Dickey was passed about ten years ago to operate against a certain fight, which was to take place in Arizona, between Fitzsimmons and Corbett. I think, and I do not believe that it has been repealed."

"Personally, I am in favor of prize-fighting," continued Mr. Withington, smiling at the surprise which was pictured in the reporter's face. "I do not mind a couple of men pummeling each other with gloves, though, of course, I am against the betting which usually accompanies such events."

NEW RULE ISSUED IN LAND TRANSFERS

Judge Weaver Gives New Instruction To Cover This Matter

An order has been issued by Judge Weaver of the Court of Land Registration in regard to the maps which shall be furnished with applications for the transfer of any subdivisions of registered land. This will be enforced in the future and while the expense to those desiring such transfer will be very small the benefit to the record will be of great value. The maps which are required in cases where the land to be subdivided are small may in many cases be made by the owner of the land himself and will not in that case cost anything.

The instructions which have been issued to the assistant registrar are as follows:

It having been brought to the attention of the Judge of the Court of Land Registration that parties claim the right to certificate of a portion of registered land, not mapped or plotted, and a question having arisen under Sections 2437 and 2461, as to the statutory right of the owners of registered land to convey portions of the same which are not plotted on the original map, on file, or any amendment thereof, without submitting a new map containing a plat of the lot subdivided, for approval by the Court, under Section 2437, and the Court, having considered the matter, is of the opinion that said sections of the Revised Statutes, do not authorize assistant registrars to issue any certificates of title except upon the whole and mapped or a portion thereof plainly plotted on the official map as required by said Section.

The Assistant Registrar is not required to assume any responsibility for the correctness of any subdivision of any lot, however apparent and simple. This is the duty of the Court.

It is therefore ordered that whenever any conveyance of a portion of any registered land is presented to the Assistant Registrar, he shall refer the same to the Court of Land Registration, with any map or plat accompanying the same, for approval of such map, before issuing any certificate thereon; and that until such subdivision is approved by the Court no certificate of title be issued on said conveyance.

Upon the approval of such map, the Assistant Registrar is authorized to issue certificate of title covering subdivisions thereon designated upon conveyances conveying the same.

The map of subdivisions submitted where the division is simple and easily checked, need not be prepared with all details as required by rules governing original maps, but should contain sufficient data to plainly plot the subdivision intended when referred to the original map. A simple plat may be prepared on tracing linen, to be filed with the original map, omitting data shown on original map as to location points, but detailed as to location with designations by numbers or letters.
